In a Cave

Tokyo Police Club

I threw darts at a spinning globe
Swapping out passport photos
I walk west in a setting sun
Every single step I grow another second youngAll my hair grows in
Wrinkles leave my skin
I still don't fade
I'll be back again when the tide is in—somedayI don't know who else to ask
Sitting in the dark, holding an empty glass
Stain my teeth with more red wine
I'm a romantic, but never pearly white
All my hair grows in
Wrinkles leave my skin
I still don't fade
I'll be back again when the tide is in—someday
Elephant shell
You're my cave and I've been hiding out
Will you tell me a little bit about, a bit about yourselfElephant shell
You're my cave and I've been hiding out
Will you tell me a little bit about, a bit about yourself
