The Captain

Kasey Chambers

Well I don't have as many friends because
I'm not as pretty as I was
I've kicked myself at times because I've lied
So I will have to learn to stand my ground
I'll tell 'em I won't be around
I'll move on over to your town and hideAnd you be the captain and I'll be no-one
And you can carry me away if you want to
And you can lay low, just like your father
And if I tread upon your feet you just say so
'Cos you're the captain, I am no-one
I tend to feel as though I owe one to you, to you
Well I have handed all my efforts in
I searched here for my second wind
Is there someone here to let me in? I asked
So I slammed the doors they slammed at me
I found the place I'm meant to be
I figured out my destiny at lastYou be the captain and I'll be no-one
And you can carry me away if you want to
And you can lay low, just like your father
And if I tread upon your feet you just say so
'Cos you're the captain, I am no-one
I tend to feel as though I owe one to you, to youDid I forget to thank you for the ride
I hadn't tried I tend to runaway and hide
You be the captain and I'll be no-one
And you can carry me away if you want to
And you can lay low, just like your father
And if I tread upon your feet you just say so
'Cos you're the captain, I am no-one
I tend to feel as though I owe one to youYou're the captain, I am no-one
I tend to feel as though I owe one to you, to you
You're the captain and I am no-one
And I owe one to you

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/