

Another Space Song

Failure

The solar panel's shining face
Is smiling back on me
Twisting off into the sun
It's okay to be lonely All my missions float away
I never trained too hard
I'm so caught up in the tree of stars
Falling in my backyard She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far I've got no Houston to whine down to I've got no protocol
Gravity's so far away
Wrapped on that shrinking ball
I eclipsed my memories
Sleeping inside this pod
Patient, time will carry me
On her back without a sigh And I won't let her down
My soul is celestial-bound
And if I'm never found
She'll always be She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far
She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far She'll always be what I can't find
She'll always be where I break down
She'll always hide behind a star
I'll always dream, she can't be far
