Michicant

Bon Iver

I was unafraid, I was a boy, I was tender age melic in the naked, knew a lake and drew the lofts for page hurdle all the waitings up, know it wasn't wedded love 4 long minutes end and it was over it'd all be back and the frost took up the eyesPressed against the pane could see the veins and there was poison

resting in a raze the inner claims I hadn't breadth to shake searching for an inner clout, may not take another bout honey in the hale could fill the pales of loving less with vain hon, it wasn't yet the spring

Aiming and it sunk and we were drunk and we had fleshed it out nose up in the globes, you never know if you are passing out no it wasn't maiden-up, the falling or the faded luck hung up in the ivory, both were climbing for a finer cause love can hardly leave the room with your heart.
