

Superman

Rachel Platten

If I could break away half of all your pain
I take the worst of it and carry you like you carry me
You say that you're alright when tears are in your eyes
We're strong enough for this and I need you
It's okay that you need me So put your armor on the ground tonight
Cause everyone got to come down sometimes You don't have to be superman
You don't have to be superman
You don't have to hold the world in your hands
You've already shown me that you can
Don't have to be superman
I know I've been gone too much
We talk about me too much
I'm selfish and distracted but I'm here
I'm here and listening And it's just you and me and these four walls
And we are only human after all You don't have to be superman
You don't have to be superman
You don't have to hold the world in your hands
You've already shown me that you can
Don't have to be superman And ohh
Rest your rise now, take my hand
Even heros fall down now and then
You can't let it go
You don't have to be superman
You don't have to be superman
You don't have to hold the world in your hands
You've already shown me that you can
Don't have to be superman
You don't have to be superman

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>