

Never

Ozzy Osbourne

It is the voice of your laughter that echoes in vain
In the vessel of your sorrow and pain
It is the beat of a heart that you hear in your mind
Something's missing but you cannot explain
You've searched your soul for feeling
Over and over now over and over now
There is now use in dreaming
Over and over now over and over now
It is the chain that you're dragging
That was once your relief
That's like everything that's born die
And the birth of a doubt that was once your belief
Is drowning in the tears that you cry
It all remains a mystery
Forever and ever now
Ever and ever now
The things that were are history
Forever and ever now
Ever and ever now
It's never too late to cry
It's never too late for good-byes
It's never too late to cry
You know you were born to die
If the Messiah is coming
Will he be too late
To reconcile our tears with our hate
And the memory of freedom
That imprisons our heart
As we're greeted by the cold hand of fate
It's never too late to cry
It's never too late for good-byes
It's never too late to cry
You know you were born to die

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>